

Historical Journeys along Rivers of Scotland

To access Accounts of Historical Journeys along Rivers of Scotland click on the relevant item below;

Lothian Rivers (Rivers Tyne, Esk, Almond, Avon, Water of Leith, and lesser streams)

Rivers of Fife & Clackmannanshire (Rivers Eden, Leven, Devon and lesser streams)

Rivers of Dumfriesshire (Rivers Esk, Sark, Annan and Nith, and Kirtle Water and Lochar Water)

Rivers of Galloway (Water of Urr, River Dee, Water of Fleet, River Cree, River Bladnoch, Water of Luce, Piltanton Burn)

There are 3 rivers in Scotland named Avon. One Account of a Historical Journey was posted some time ago, under the umbrella of Lothian Rivers, and is accessed there. The other two can be accessed by clicking on the relevant items below. The Account of the Aberdeenshire River Don is complete, and includes estimates of the split of farm mills between threshing mills and whin mills.

Lanarkshire Avon Water

Moray River Avon

Aberdeenshire River Don

Note that each journey is accompanied by sketch maps of rivers, and an Appendix, prepared by Alastair Robertson, giving the locations and types of the watermills, within the catchments.